

Absolute monogamy as a social pillar

Description

A selection from our May conference

Imre Bed?: Absolute monogamy as a social pillar

The institution of monogamy is under general attack. In parallel, we are witnessing a complete disintegration of the Western world and culture. No children are being born, families are no longer fulfilling their function and neither the moral foundations nor the family unit are being inherited. At a social level, at a cultural level, we need to put back into place the fact that monogamy and absolute monogamy are one of the most important issues of social organisation, and one that is much more complex than the living of sexuality.
